I just read the new ordinance about copy changes and the policy. This comes with great delight and also brings up a missing element that might well be problematic in the future.

The mention of historic materials, such as wood and paint are not in this policy. This opens the door for plastics and vinyl letters and metals. Were you on the board when St. Anthony's bought some foam signs and said they looked just like wood and were denied? There seems to be a very clear presidency set here, for keeping it real. Not something out of a machine that looks modern and is modern.

Thanks Julia. I hope you enjoy the holiday.
